

MARINES TO START HOMEWARD MARCH TO CAPITAL TODAY

Camp Harding Stripped
To Pup Tents on Eve
Of Departure.

CLEAN BATTLE AREA

Giant Bombing Planes Will Carry Part of Equipment
To Quantico.

CAMP HARDING, Gettysburg, Pa., July 5.—Breaking camp was officially begun today by the Marine force encamped here, and by noon Camp Harding looked like an encampment after a cyclone had passed through it.

All of the large tents occupied by distinguished guests during the exercises had been taken down. Plumbing and electric-light wiring were torn up, and the furniture, wood flooring and other equipment which has been used to make this canvas city habitable were collected in piles, being loaded as rapidly as possible in trucks and aeroplanes for transportation back to Quantico. The equipment used by the force at the camp was drawn from the general store at Quantico where the Marine Corps maintains a considerable quantity of equipment purchased during the war. Not a cent has been expended for the purchase of new equipment.

Bath Tubs Loaded.
By afternoon material awaiting transportation had been loaded and the camp was stripped down to the "pup tents." A feature of the return transportation was the loading of the porcelain bath tubs used by distinguished visitors on Marine bombers, for transportation to the Marine base. The transportation of these tubs offered a difficult problem. While not particularly heavy, it was feared that in transportation by truck all the porcelain would be chipped off them. Hearing of the problem the aviation forces came to the rescue and the tubs were transported to and from Quantico strapped under the fuselage of the giant bombing machines, each of which is capable of carrying 3,000 pounds of freight.

Begin Hike at 5:30 a. m.
Special care is being taken in cleaning up the battlefield which was occupied by the Marines during their stay here. Pick and shovel gangs are eradicating roads and wheel tracks and fatigue squads are gathering up and destroying or burying rubbish. When the Marine force moves out of the camp area and the part of the battlefield over which they maneuvered will be left as clean as though it had been swept with brooms.

At 5:30 o'clock tomorrow morning the infantry regiments of the Marine force will begin their long hike to Washington.

CHARGE MALARIAL EPIDEMIC ON CANAL

An epidemic of malaria and fever among employees in the Panama Canal Zone, caused directly by the reduction in money available for mosquito measures, is charged by the American Federation of Labor.

In a statement issued last night the Federation says that the Secretary of War cut down the appropriation, work of preventing mosquito breeding has been far less efficient, with the result that these germ carriers have spread the disease rapidly.

William G. Harding, representative of the Canal Zone employees here, is leaving today for Panama to investigate and report on the situation.

SOUNDING DEVICE TO REVOLUTIONIZE SEA NAVIGATION

Bottom of Ocean to Be Charted by Navy by Annapolis Man's Plan.

USE IT IN WAR ALSO

First Test Trip From Newport, R. I., to Gibraltar,
Just Completed.

A map of the earth's sea-beds drawn by sound is the miracle promised with the new device just successfully tested by the Navy Department.

Such are the revolutionary possibilities in this sounding instrument that ships may soon discard the old system of navigation by stars and piloting by the crude methods of lead and line soundings. A map of the sea-bed, once completed, a ship, through the guidance of this miraculous new device, may pursue its way over the water trails as an air pilot follows familiar landmarks below him.

The U. S. destroyer Stewart, the first ship to undertake a detailed test of the new device, has just finished a cruise from Newport, R. I., to Gibraltar, during which exhaustive tests of this new sounding service were carried on and reports made daily by radio to the Navy Department here.

Deeper Than Dreamed Of.

The hitherto uncharted bottom of the sea between Tyneburg Bank and Josephine was minutely explored and was found to consist of an extensive plain bordered by mountains and tablelands, some of which rose 1,000 feet above the level of the plain. Several deep depressions, where the sea proves to be of a hitherto undreamed of depth, were recorded during the progress of these observations. It is stated by the experts in charge of the work that the device makes it possible to chart with minute accuracy the floor of all the sea.

Its value as a practical aid to piloting and navigation rests in the fact that the device will give immediate measurements of depths of water so that there is no load to heave or wire to unreel and reel in again as in all other means of obtaining soundings. It is used in connection with a sound transmitter and sound receiver and depends in its operation upon the reflected echo of a signal given off by the vessel's sound transmitter being received by the ship's receiver.

Will Aid Navigation.

It is pointed out that, whereas a ship's position is determined by the sun and stars and frequently runs into difficulties because of the absence of either of these reference objects, a minute charting of the sea's bottom will enable the navigator to make his soundings and refer to his charts and thus determine with a large measure of accuracy his position.

The apparatus was designed principally by Harvey C. Hayes, physicist of the United States Naval Engineering Experiment Station at Annapolis, Md., who accompanied the Stewart to Gibraltar. He is now on his way back to the United States.

Secretary Denby on March 1 announced the perfection of the device, but a prolonged test had never been given until the Stewart undertook the task. At the time of Secretary Denby's initial statement it was pointed out that there are many places in the Atlantic Ocean, particularly in the Gulf of Mexico, which have never been successfully sounded for depth, because of the inefficiency of any known apparatus.

MEXICO WELCOMES HILLTOP STUDENTS

Minister of Education Greet.
Georgetown University Foreign Service Class.

Honors awaited the delegation of Georgetown University students upon their arrival in Mexico City yesterday, according to word received from Roy S. MacElwaine, dean of the foreign service school, who accompanied the students on their expedition into Mexico.

The forty-odd students were received by the president and faculties of Mexico at a formal reception and by the minister of education, who welcomed the students on behalf of the government.

An interesting feature of the expedition was the extension of formal greetings from President John B. Cresson, S. J., of Georgetown University, who welcomed the students on behalf of the university.

The Georgetown students will take a six-weeks' course at the university during their stay in Mexico.

Embryo printers started training yesterday. Twenty-three young men and boys, ambitious to succeed in the printing craft, started in the ground floor of the Government Printing Office yesterday. The youths composed the first class in a school for apprentices formally inaugurated at the government's big print shop yesterday by Public Printer George H. Carter.

Of the twenty-three students, twenty are in training for compositors and printers, two for electrotyping and one for machine.

At the end of four years the students will be turned out as finished printers. The class will be in charge of Alfred D. Calvert, a veteran in the business.

Gives Cross to Church.

Miss Mary Wheeler, president of the women's organization of Epiphany Church, yesterday presented a large brass cross and service book to the Episcopal City Mission for use in the jail, in memory of Dr. Randolph McKim, active in church work.

Building Bath Attracts Throng

Crowd Thought State, War
And Navy Structure
Was on Fire.

A special big red engine of the fire department whirled up and stopped before the State, War and Navy Building early yesterday morning.

Picked men from the department, who carried the apparatus, jumped out, attached a long fire hose to a nearby hydrant, started the engine, and directed a powerful stream of water up to the very cornice of the building. A crowd gathered on the sidewalk, clustered in the building craned their necks out of the windows.

Where was the fire? There was no visible smoke or flame; there had been no alarm. What was the matter?

Then came the explanation. The firemen were merely giving the building a bath.

VATICAN TRIES TO SAVE SHRINE

Cenaculum Private Property
Of King of Italy, Says
Catholic Paper.

ROME, July 5.—The Vatican is making strenuous efforts to save for Christianity, if not all Palestine, at least the sanctuary of the "Cenaculum" in Jerusalem, where the Lord's Last Supper took place. The publication of the French and English white books on Palestine, reaffirming the decision to make Palestine the spiritual home of the Hebrews, and the white book of the American Congress approving this determination caused a deep disappointment in Vatican circles.

The Vatican is watching closely Foreign Minister Schanzer's negotiations in London concerning the sanctuary of the Cenaculum, which is claimed by Italy. The Corriere della Sera, a Catholic newspaper, maintains that the sanctuary is the private property of the King of Italy and for this reason, despite the fact that it has a mandate over Palestine, England has no jurisdiction over the holy place.

The newspaper supports its arguments by quoting history. "In the year 1228," it says, "King Robert of Naples bought the sanctuary and placed therein a group of minor friars, who later bought from the king the surrounding land, where they built a monastery. In 1552 the sultan, who had the property and turned the sanctuary into a mosque, but during the Versailles conference Italy demanded the restitution of the property to Italy's king, who was entitled to it as the heir to the King of Naples."

"The demand was recognized as just and in 1919 the sultan by a special edict returned the property to the king, but when the English government was asked to approve the sultan's action, which was meant to right an ancient wrong, it refused, saying the matter must be decided by an ecclesiastical committee."

MARINES TO HELP UNVEIL MONUMENT

Leesburg Will Honor Loudoun Heroes Who Died in World War.

LEESBURG, Va., July 5.—A company of Marines will be sent from Gettysburg to Leesburg on Saturday to attend the unveiling of the monument here to the soldiers and sailors from Loudoun County who died in the world war. A telegram from Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler says he has ordered the Marines here for the occasion. Presumably they will come by truck and cross the Potomac at Point of Rocks.

The presence of the Marines is supposed to be intended as a special honor to the memory of Capt. Edwin C. Fuller, formerly commanding officer of the 7th company of Marines of Hamilton, Loudoun county, who was killed in action in France and whose name is among those on the monument, a tablet of marble and granite with bronze face bearing the names of the soldier and sailor dead from this county.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Howard Posey, and four children, F. Stone Posey, Mrs. W. Carlisle Turner and Miss Inez Posey, of Charles County, and Mrs. Louis D. Rose, of Baltimore.

DENBY AND PARTY VISIT JAPAN'S RULER

TOKYO, July 5.—Secretary of the Navy Denby and his party were granted an audience by Prince Regent Hirohito and the empress this morning, the latter chatting with the Secretary and Senator Welles. The members of the party were the guests at a luncheon given by Baron Goto, the mayor of Tokyo.

Mr. Denby, responding to a speech by the baron, said he would be happy if he was able to lend Japan, having added anything to the entire cordials between America and Japan, which, he declared, means the peace of the world. The luncheon party enjoyed the novelty of hearing the American national anthem played on Japanese stringed instruments.
